

Perianal Herpes

Painful Herpes simplex lesions in the perianal region of an immunocompromised patient. Note that the typical vesicle may be absent by the time the patient is seen, leaving only painful, beefy red erosions. Cutaneous erosions may be the only presenting sign in immunocompetent people as well, but not typically as extensive as seen in this example.