

Secondary Syphilis

An example of a maculopapular rash on the palms of a patient with secondary syphilis. The rash of secondary syphilis can take on most any characteristic, but vesicular eruptions are quite rare if not unknown. Rashes on the palms and soles should raise the possibility of secondary syphilis.