

Disseminated Gonorrhea

The rash of disseminated gonorrhea characteristically consists of purple to red papules with a central pustule that can become necrotic. These patients typically have migratory arthralgias, arthritis, and tenosynovitis, particularly of the wrist.