

Bowen's disease

Bowen's disease typically presents as a solitary sharply demarcated, skin-colored to pink to fiery red, firm scaly plaque. It may appear as isolated or multiple lesions. It is a squamous cell carcinoma in situ.