

Knee Ballottement

Knee ballottement is a method to check for a large synovial effusion. The patella is quickly pressed against the femur and released. A quick rebound of the patella against the examining finger indicates the presence of a knee effusion.