

Internal Medicines' finest will be on display. Will you be a part of it?

The American College of Physicians' Premier Scientific Meeting-Internal Medicine 2010

The American College of Physicians is the nation's largest medical specialty society. Internal Medicine 2010 is the pre-eminent educational and networking event for internal medicine—the scientific meeting internists turn to first when seeking exceptional learning opportunities, continuing medical education credits, help with managing a practice, and information on legislative issues. With more than 260 scientific sessions, it's no wonder why, year after year, ACP's annual meeting attracts an audience of nearly 7,000 accomplished physicians.

ACP Knows Internists.

Do you want to reach this high-prescribing audience of physicians? Exhibit at Internal Medicine 2010 in Toronto, ON—the world's premier event for internists. Let us help you reach the most influential leaders in internal medicine. The educational experience for physicians is supreme.

Internal Medicine 2010 is the world's largest internal medicine meeting.

What does an internist do?

- Diagnoses and treats common and complex illnesses.
- Provides care to adults and adolescents.
- Cares for patients in both the office and the hospital.
- Coordinates patient care with other medical specialists.
- Specializes in health promotion and disease prevention.

ACP's Internal Medicine 2010 attendees constitute the ideal market for businesses wishing to reach high-prescribing clinicians treating adult patients.

Visit www.acponline.org/exhibits for more information.