Strengthening Food and Nutrition Security to Promote Public Health in the United States: A Position Paper From the American College of Physicians

In this position paper, the American College of Physicians (ACP) offers several policy recommendations to strengthen the federal food-insecurity response and empower physicians and other medical professionals to better address those social drivers of health occurring beyond the office doors.

Annals of Internal Medicine full text: https://www.acpjournals.org/doi/10.7326/M22-0390