ACP Associate (Resident) Awards

The Army Chapter of the American College of Physicians Associates Award was created in 1988 to recognize excellence in Army resident research. Opportunities to present resident research at national meeting are limited. The creation of the Associates Award acknowledged the importance research plays in the development of a new physician and rewards outstanding efforts in resident research. Initially these presentations were given in the General Medicine Specialty Section from 1988 to 1993; they were moved to the plenary Session in 1994. Each participating Medical Center Department of Medicine Chief is asked to submit one resident podium presentation to compete on behalf their program. Graduates from the previous year are allowed to compete in the fall following graduation.

In 1998, a poster competition was added allowing two posters from each Medical Center and selecting a first, second and third prize for the three superior posters. In 2003, the poster competition was divided into separate Research and Clinical Vignette competitions. The Research Podium and Clinical Vignette poster winners represent the Army Chapter at the National ACP's Internal Medicine meeting in the spring. A fellows research poster competition was started in 2009. In 2016, a Performance Improvement poster competition was added to recognize its importance to graduate medical education and Army Medicine's journey to become a highly reliable organization. Finally, there was a staff research competition, but for a variety of reasons, it was only held for a single year in 2005.

Doctor's Dilemma® Competition

The Doctor's Dilemma® Competition, also known as Medical Jeopardy, is a competition between the six internal medicine residency programs. Each residency program selects three team members from their residency program. The teams do their best to answer questions about internal medicine in the shortest time possible. The winner is the team with the most points after final jeopardy. This team represents the Army Chapter at the National ACP's Internal Medicine meeting in the spring by competing against teams from across the country.

William Crosby Superiority in Research Award

The William Crosby Superiority in Research Award is designed to honor a member, fellow, or master of the Army Chapter of the ACP who has demonstrated excellence in the design, performance, and publication of peer reviewed research which exemplifies the characteristics displayed by COL(Ret) William Crosby, MC. The recipient should be recognized in both the military and civilian academic community as having made significant contributions to the scientific literature. The first award winner was COL Nancy A. Dawson in 1998.

COL Crosby is internationally recognized as an expert in Hematology and was instrumental in establishing the Army Blood Banking Fellowship, the blood research detachment as well as the specialty of hematology at both WRAMC and WRAIR. He has published over 300 manuscripts and patented a capsule to sample the gastrointestinal tract for sprue as an example of his diversity in medicine. He was a Regimental Surgeon in World War II and published a series of manuscripts regarding large volume transfusions during the Korean Conflict to establish a critical mechanism for resuscitation with group O whole blood. His publications appeared in superior peer reviewed specialty and general medicine journals. Thus, COL Crosby’s career exemplifies superior research with keen operational relevance, broad academic interests and contributions, excellence in academic medicine and dedicated service to the troops and the Army as a deployed Regimental Surgeon.
