Governor's Update

I am writing this in March 2022. Pretty cool to see. Stability. Simplicity. Consistency. Those sound like pretty good characteristics to embody as an individual, and as a Chapter!

Stability – It has been a quick few years as Governor, but one of the things I hoped to do was establish a stable platform for our Chapter. The GAC has stepped up to own that work of the Chapter, and we have benefitted from the support we receive from Lutine Management. This foundation of structure and function are clear as we moved from Bronze to Silver and now to Gold for our Chapter Excellence Award! These foundations will serve us well as we begin to think about the next phase of our Chapter. I am pleased to again announce that Selvam Mascarenhas MD was elected our next Governor! He will officially begin his year as Governor-Elect at the Annual Meeting. He will spend that year learning more about the College and our Chapter and will be well-prepared to take the Chapter further forward.

Simplicity – We focused on continuing a couple of core activities as a Chapter for this year and establishing some others that we plan to continue. We wanted to make sure that each member of our Chapter had some activities that they could enjoy and that would be relevant to them. We have several remaining events for the rest of this year, and please see the rest of this newsletter and make a decision to join a group/meeting and get involved!

Consistency – At the heart of our Chapter has always been the Annual Meeting. I am so grateful for Melissa Morgan-Gouveia’s leadership AGAIN this year. She had the foresight and decisiveness to commit to a virtual path, and she was most certainly correct! Bhavin Dave was an active and excellent Co-Chair and will be ready for our (hopefully in-person!!) Annual Meeting next year. I know he would welcome you to join the Program Planning Committee – so please let us know if you are interested.

Please take a look at the rest of the Newsletter for highlights of previous and upcoming activities. Please be sure to take advantage of the ACP National Meeting as well – I hope to have strong Chapter representation in person, but of course, urge you to take advantage of the Virtual content if needed.

Thanks for all you do and don’t hesitate to reach out with ideas, suggestions, or questions!

Virtual Annual Chapter Meeting Update

The Delaware ACP Chapter’s 2022 Annual Scientific Meeting was held virtually on February 5, 2022. We had a very successful meeting with 85 registered attendees and 25 posters presented in the virtual poster session.

We had great speakers for this year’s virtual meeting! Dr. Stuart Prenner gave an overview of Heart Failure with Preserved Ejection Fraction. Dr. David Chen discussed Delaware’s Social Determinants of Health. We held a Multiple Small Feedings of the Mind session this year with Dr. Rishi Sawhney from Oncology, Dr. Amy Wachter from Endocrinology, and Dr. Ramesh Vemulapalli from Infectious Disease. Dr. William Fox presented “Why are physicians paid what they are paid? A view from the RUC” and an update from ACP national. Dr. Katie Drago gave the literature update. Medical student Nichol Kushner and resident Dr. Rina Joshi gave oral abstract presentations. We are grateful to all our speakers for their excellent presentations.

The Chapter's 2022 Award winners included:

Committee Spotlight – Women in Medicine

Our most recent Women in Medicine seminar focused on negotiation strategies as a woman in medicine. The conversation was led by a well-known leader in Delaware, Amy Stengel formerly the director of the Women’s Leadership Institute at the University of Delaware and now Head of Learning and Development at BestEgg. She spoke about 3 main areas when thinking about negotiations. The importance of preparation, practice, and the actual proposal are key steps when planning a conversation around negotiation. The group discussed key resources to use to understand fair market value and comparable salaries for the position you are applying for and identifying non-financial ideas for compensation including time, stipend, CME funds, academic titles, etc. She also discussed having a mentor or sponsor to help navigate these conversations and practicing the ask with these individuals. In the Practice section, she spoke about the importance of believing in yourself, not allowing doubt or aspects of self-worth to impede the confidence which is critical to making a strong ask. Lastly, the group highlighted the method of making the proposal for negotiation and focused on “The ASK and then THE PAUSE”. Often women continue to elaborate or attempt to justify without just asking confidently and respectfully, and then pausing, the pause is critical, for the response. Check out our zoom link and follow up further with our Women in Medicine group for questions or additional thoughts about this conversation. We thank our participants and our speaker as well as the support from our DE ACP chapter in being upstanders for women in medicine.

News from the Field

Benefits of telehealth continue in Delaware, even as pandemic restrictions ease
Bay to Bay News
When Dr. Jonathan Kaufmann’s son needed an ophthalmology appointment, the family did not drive more than an hour to Nemours Eye Clinic in Wilmington. Rather, the exam was done virtually in the parking lot of his son’s school. What Internal Medicine Residency Match Sees Record High, Reflecting Essential Role of Internists

The 2022 Main Residency Match revealed that internal medicine remains the largest training specialty, offering one-quarter (25.9 percent) of all PGY-1 positions in the Match. Internal medicine programs offered a record high 9,380 categorical positions, while offered primary care internal medicine positions declined to 429. Of the categorical positions, a record high 8,915 (95.0 percent) were filled, 5,093 (57.1 percent) by U.S. medical school seniors. Of the primary care internal medicine positions, 424 (98.8 percent) were filled, 281 (66.3 percent) by U.S. medical school seniors.

8 reasons why health care cost inflation is likely to escalate

Health care costs in the U.S. decreased for the first time in our lifetimes due to decreases in elective, preventive, and chronic disease care caused by the pandemic. By 2021, however, health care costs caught up to pre-pandemic projections. Eight factors, outlined below, indicate a return to health care cost increases far above inflation, posing enormous challenges to employers and health plan sponsors.

Biden administration working to reduce overdose deaths

The overdose death rate in Delaware has risen 1.566% from 447 overdose deaths in 2020 – to 454 overdose deaths in the twelve-month period from May of 2020 to May of 2021, according to the CDC. Although it may seem that Delaware’s approach to the overdose crisis is trying our best, Delaware must and can do better if we work together through harm reduction – as President Biden pointed out in the State of the Union Address.

House passes bill to cap insulin prices

The House of Representatives voted Thursday to approve legislation that would limit cost-sharing for insulin under private health insurance and Medicare. The vote was 232-193, with 12 Republican members joining their Democratic colleagues to pass the measure.
