Be Cybersecure: Protect Patient Records, Avoid Fines, and Safeguard Your Reputation

Cybercrime costs the U.S. economy billions of dollars each year and causes organizations to devote substantial time and resources to keeping their information secure. This is even more important for healthcare organizations, the most frequently attacked form of business.¹ Cybercriminals target healthcare for two main reasons: healthcare organizations fail to upgrade their cybersecurity as quickly as other businesses, and criminals find personal patient information particularly valuable to exploit. The repercussions of security breaches can be daunting. A business that suffers a breach of more than 500 records of unencrypted personal health information (PHI) must report the breach to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services’ Office for Civil Rights (OCR). This is the federal body with the power to enforce the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) and issue fines. To date, the OCR has levied over $25 million in fines, with the largest single fine totaling $4.8 million.² A healthcare organization’s brand and reputation are also at stake. The OCR maintains a searchable database (informally known as a "wall of shame") that publicly lists all entities that were fined for breaches that meet the 500-record requirement.³ If you think you may not be fully compliant with HIPAA privacy and security rules, consider taking the following steps:

- Identify all areas of potential vulnerability. Develop secure office processes, such as:
  - Sign-in sheets that ask for only minimal information. Policies for the handling and destruction of paper records.
  - Procedures for the handling and destruction of paper records.
  - Policies detailing which devices are allowed to contain PHI and under what circumstances those devices may leave the office.
  - Encrypt all devices that contain PHI (laptops, desktops, thumb drives, and centralized storage devices). Make sure that thumb drives are encrypted and that the encryption code is not inscribed on or included with the thumb drive. Encryption is the best way to prevent a breach.
  - Train your staff on how to protect PHI. This includes not only making sure policies and procedures are HIPAA-compliant, but also instructing staff not to openly discuss patient PHI.
  - Audit and test your physical and electronic security policies and procedures regularly, including what steps to take in case of a breach. The OCR audits entities that have had a breach, as well as those that have not. The OCR will check if you have procedures in place in case of a breach. Taking the proper steps in the event of a breach may help you avoid a fine.
  - Insure. Make sure that your practice has insurance to assist with certain costs in case of a breach.
