Experts: MACRA tools can do the heavy lifting, but preparation still required
Healthcare Finance
Eligible clinicians across the country are in the midst of their first performance year under MACRA. Metrics reported this year will tell the tale in 2019 as far as what kind of reimbursements, bonuses, or more forebodingly, penalties they will see. Unfortunately, a number of studies show clinicians aren't ready for MACRA. While some are simply struggling to make upgrades and changes that will facilitate compliance, many are not sufficiently familiar with the ins and outs of the law and how it will impact them. How efficient EHR use can improve chronic disease management
EHRIintelligence
Effective EHR use can improve care coordination, streamline daily clinical processes and save hospitals money. However, EHR systems continue to receive blame for contributing to rising rates of physician burnout, a deteriorating patient-provider relationship and generally inconveniencing providers. While the health care community is often at odds regarding the efficiency of EHR technology, recent evidence suggests...
EHR systems can improve chronic disease management to yield better patient health outcomes and reduce work for clinicians in the long run. READ MORE

Specialists lack Medicare alternative payment model, MACRA options

Opportunities for specialists to join a Medicare alternative payment model are severely limited, especially for emergency medicine providers and audiologists, a recent Leavitt Partners report showed. As part of its effort to reimburse one-half of Medicare payments under value-based reimbursement models by the end of 2018, CMS runs Medicare, Medicaid and multi-payer alternative payment models. The federal agency sponsored 45 models as of September 2017 that contained some level of value-based reimbursement to providers. READ MORE

Can MACRA promote greater synergy across Medicaid and Medicare APMs to transform care?

Recent legislative efforts to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act pushed Medicaid reform into the center of the health policy spotlight. However, while Congress was debating coverage expansion and federal financing, some states have been quietly implementing their own delivery reform in an effort to reward value-based care. Many Republican and Democratic governors alike have embraced alternative payment models such as medical homes, accountable care organizations and bundled payments to help improve the efficiency of their Medicaid programs.
