Immune Health Services (IHS) is a primary care home to approximately 1200 HIV-positive and HIV-at-risk adults. With modern therapy, HIV-positive individuals are living long and healthy lives. However, they continue to experience stigma in accessing medical care, and they remain at elevated risk for cardiovascular disease, malignancy, depression, anxiety, and substance use disorders. IHS provides HIV primary care, pre and post-exposure prophylaxis for HIV, primary care for persons at risk for HIV, hepatitis C treatment, cervical and anal cancer screening, and integrated behavioral health care. HIV-specific clinical trials are conducted in the neighboring Institute for Human Performance and offer our patients opportunities to contribute to cutting edge science. We are Primary Care Medical Home certified, participate in the Central New York DSRIP program and the New York State HIV Quality of Care initiatives. Our environment of continuous learning and collaboration, including case conferences, academic conferences, teaching of medical students and residents, and opportunities to engage in clinical trials research. The IHS primary care physician will see patients three days a week in our office on the SUNY Upstate campus and assist in quality assurance and quality improvement activities. The other two days per week the practitioner will see primary care patients at one of Upstate’s internal medicine or family practice clinics, with options to match and grow the practitioner’s interests, ranging from resident teaching, behavioral health, refugee health, drug user health, LGBTQ health and others, including procedures such as colposcopy and anoscopy. MD or foreign equivalent, NYS license or eligible, BC/BE in internal medicine. The ideal candidate is an experienced, compassionate primary care physician with an interest in developing expertise in outpatient HIV care and prevention and expanding her academic skills in complimentary ways within the Upstate Primary Care system.
