ACP supports this measure. Evidence supports utilization of the PHQ-9 tool for monitoring the treatment progress in patients with depression. Furthermore, this measure has potential to lead to an accurate outcome measure by determining well validated levels of depression severity.

Date Reviewed: November 7, 2015