Figure 4. Correlation Between Height and Weight in Study Participants.

Example of a scatter graph, representing the intersection of two bits of data, the height and weight, and showing the relationship between the variables.

Alignment of the data points along an imaginary line depicts a correlation between the two variables.

Each data point is the intersection of two bits of data.